DETAILED ACTION

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claims 1-27 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In each of the independent claims (1, 18, 19, 25, 26, 27), the terminology "become stacked together in a standing up configuration as an array of packets" is present. Based on the disclosure and the drawings, it appears the support 5 which is present in each and every drawing and is described and stated in the specification "stacking conveyor 3 is, for example, also provided with supports 5 which prevents packets from lying flat." (specification page 4, paragraph 18). It appears from the drawings and spec that the support 5 is an integral part of the invention which has not been claimed and which in turn would appear to prevent the claimed invention from functioning as claimed. For example, the examiner interprets a standing up configuration as an array of packets" as a uniform, in order stack of products such as those products shown in the Koehler Patent (US 6,182,814), not the claimed packets of the present application since there is no claimed way of orienting the packets on the conveyor to allow the grippers to form the packets into a standing up array of packets. "Array" is typically defined as an orderly line or arrangement". Without the support 5 being claimed, it is unclear how the packets will be gripped into the standing up configuration and an orderly line. The packets would most likely be pushed together by the grippers in a misaligned unorderedly arrangement which defeats the purpose of the present invention.

Claims 8 and 22 positively recite the packets as part of the claimed invention, which is contradictory to claim 1. The packets do not appear as a structural part or combination of the invention in claim 1, since they are only recited in a functional phrase.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

4. Claims 1, 2, 5-9, 12-17, and 25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Koehler (US Pat. No. 6,182,814).

See the attached marked up copy of Koehler figure 1 depicting the claimed features.

Please note the examiner is interpreting gripper 80 as the first gripper, and grippers 70 and 90 as the claimed second gripper.

RE claim 16, Koehler does not positively suggest changing the gripping force in his first and second grippers, but the device is capable of such action as currently claimed. Because Koehler uses second gripper 70 first and then second gripper 90 next, the force during the transition would inherently be changed during the transition.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claims 3, 4, 18-24, 26, and 27 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Koehler.

Koehler teaches the claimed invention as outline in above paragraph 4. Koehler fails to teach the use of first and second drive motors. Koehler is vague on his belt drive system. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide at least 2 different drives, and possibly even 3 drives (for belts 70, 80, 90) since each of the different sets of grippers are on their own belts and for the versatility of the stacking machine, having different drives on each belt would allow a multitude of options in stacking different products and different numbers of products.

Allowable Subject Matter

7. Claims 10 and 11 would be allowable if rewritten to overcome the rejection(s) under 35 U.S.C. 112, 2nd paragraph, set forth in this Office action and to include all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
